Racial (In)Equity

WHY is it important?

America will not be able to continue to compete on a global scale without decreasing racial disparities and improving outcomes for young children of color, a major part of our future workforce.

More than half of children born in the U.S. are of color

WHAT is racial equity?

Equality = sameness

In the picture on the left, everyone gets the same size box, yet they still don’t have a view of the game. Equality promotes fairness by giving everyone the same thing, one box. BUT, it can only work if everyone starts from the same place.

Equity = fairness

In the picture on the right, each person gets enough boxes to give them a view of the game. We must first ensure EQUITY, everyone with a view of the same. It’s about making sure people get access to the same opportunities.

The statistical portrait of the US population broken out by race reveals persistent disparities between people of color and white people in almost every indicator.

Our society has created barriers to opportunities based on race.

Racial equity is the condition that would be achieved if one’s racial identity no longer predicted, in a statistical sense, how one fares.
